BOISE – If you're between the ages of 6 and 18, riding ValleyRide buses this summer can be an inexpensive way to get around the Treasure Valley.

A "My Ride" three-month summer pass, which goes on sale Friday (May 22), is priced at $24. It is good for unlimited rides on all ValleyRide buses during June, July and August. Children less than 6 years old ride the bus for free.

The regular cost of a three-month student pass is $90.

ValleyRide operates bus routes in Boise, Garden City, Nampa and Caldwell and intercounty service between Ada and Canyon counties. More information about the bus services offered is available at www.valleyride.org.

The My Ride passes, which go on sale beginning Friday (May 22), can be purchased at many of the regular ValleyRide pass outlets, including Albertsons stores in Boise, Caldwell and Nampa, the WinCo stores in Eagle and on Front Street in Boise, the ACHD Commuteride Office at the corner of Fairview and Curtis in Boise, and the Valley Regional Transit office, 830 N. Main St. in Meridian. For more information about the passes and ValleyRide bus routes, you can call the customer service RideLine at 345-RIDE (7433).
